This is not a luxury whisky. Or is it?

The inspiration for this limited release is René Magritte’s 1929 work "Ceci n’est pas une pipe", a Surrealist painting which challenges peoples’ perceptions of reality.

The reality is, these days we hear more and more commentators talking about ‘luxury’ whiskies, which are presumably whiskies that are either rare or expensive, or, possibly, both.

On one level, similar to the role Magritte’s painting played in the art world, this release is about getting people to consider for themselves what a ‘luxury’ whisky is.

On another level, a level we consider much more important, this limited release is about the liquid. This is about the whisky in the bottle, which we have painstakingly sourced and blended, and the engagement and enjoyment and pleasure this whisky will bring when shared with others.

This latter point is what we believe a ‘luxury’ whisky is. And at Compass Box, this is what we believe whisky, generally speaking, is all about.

John Glaser, Whiskymaker
This is not a luxury Whisky
Blended Scotch Whisky

1. First Fill
Malt whisky from Glen Ord
- 79% Total Liquid Volume
- Sultanas, sherry, floral sweetness.

2. Refill American
Grain whisky from Strathclyde
- Oak Hogshead
- 10.1% Total Liquid Volume
- Deep richness, demerara, cocoa nibs.

3. Refill American
Grain whisky from Girvan
- Oak Hogshead
- 6.9% Total Liquid Volume
- Buttery, coconut, vanilla.

4. Refill American
Malt whisky from Caol Ila
- Oak Hogshead
- 4.0% Total Liquid Volume
- Herbal, elegant, supple smoke.

www.compassboxwhisky.com/luxury